Step to Advanced Teacher's Book

(October 2014 Revision 1)

Answers, Teaching Notes, and Transcripts

This Teacher's Book is a work in progress. At the moment it is mostly just answers and transcripts. It will be periodically updated with additional teaching notes and extra material. Note: Page numbers – unless otherwise stated – refer to the Student Book pages, not the Teacher Book pages.

Handbook for Teachers

There is an Anglia 'Handbook for Teachers' which gives a breakdown of the test sections for all ten levels of tests from First Step to Masters. The 110-page guide has detailed notes on the grammar patterns and vocabulary tested at each level.

General Advice

Personalise the Language

Get students to practise words and sentence patterns by making TRUE sentences about THEMSELVES. Emphasise that the sentences should be true and personalised; sentences that are, for example, about a fictional 'John and Mary' will not generate any discussion. With true statements, students can pair up, and take turns reading their sentences and discussing them. A good class wrap-up for this is to have students tell the class something they found out about their partner. Personalised questions using the target words, phrases or grammar patterns can be used in a similar fashion.

Not only are personalised sentences more memorable and useful, when students know that the sentences they write for this kind of exercise will be used in the class, they are more motivated and do a better job.

Guessing the False Statements

Sometimes it's difficult to come up with true personalised sentences. An easier and fun alternative is for students to write a mixture of true and false statements. They read them in small groups/the class, and the other students guess (after all the statements have been read, not one by one) which ones are false.

Assign Homework

Many of the sections, especially the test practice sections, can be done at home and the answers discussed in class. Writing homework should also be given on a regular basis.

Correct Mistakes

Students like to know when they are making mistakes. Rather than just correcting verbally, write the errors and corrections up on the board. This works well for writing errors and for speaking errors that you overhear, but there are times such as during a class discussion when you do not want to break the flow. For this, a simple oral correction – repeating what the student said with the added correction – works best.

Try and keep 'teacher talk' to a minimum

Increase Student Speaking Time by doing pair work and group work. Remember to change pairs so that students aren't always working with the same partners.

Focus on Usage rather than Explanation

It's very easy to get sidetracked with long explanations about words and phrases, especially when it comes to explaining the subtle differences between similar words. You should concentrate on giving good examples that show common collocations.

Likewise, you should steer students toward asking about usage; For example, when handling a reading exercise don't ask, "Are there any words that you don't know?" as this tends to lead to a focus on explaining low-frequency vocabulary. It's better to ask, "Do you have any questions?" or "Is there anything that you're not sure about?"

General Advice for the Vocabulary Lists and Pictures

The first page of each unit starts with boxed vocabulary, 5–6 pictures, and some questions for discussion. The best way to handle this is to start with the pictures. Have the students say what the pictures are. Then go back to the vocabulary list, reading through it and checking that the students know what the words mean. After that, get them to go through the questions in pairs, and then have a class discussion of the questions. If you want, you can get the students to make questions/sentences using the vocabulary.

General Advice on Speaking Sections

You should get the students into the habit of giving long answers, even if they are unlikely to take the Speaking Test. It gives students good practice, makes classes more interesting and helps create a better class atmosphere.

The Anglia speaking test is different from most other tests as it involves interaction with another examinee and not just the examiner. Train the students to have longer conversations with their classmates by asking follow-up questions, using expressions of agreement/disagreement/surprise etc.

Speaking Test Grading

The different tasks are not graded separately, and the grade awarded for the Speaking Test is an overall mark. The 'Handbook for Teachers' has notes on the five criteria (communication, content, pronunciation, vocabulary, grammar) used for grading.

General Advice on Dictation

Dictation tends to be underused in the ESL classroom. It's a good way to add some extra listening and spelling practice. And it saves on photocopying and writing on the board. When dictating questions, you can change them to make them more relevant/interesting to your class. Alternatively, you can get the students to generate the questions; this works best by having the students write two or three questions each, then choosing the best to use for the dictation.

General Advice on Writing Sections

Your school should have a copy of Anglia's 'A Guide to Composition and Letter Writing'. This 136-page guide covers Elementary to Masters levels and was written by Liz Bangs-Jones, Anglia's Chief Examiner.

Essay Titles

On the test paper there is a small box where examinees should write the title of their essay. Test takers should not worry about coming up with a clever title; a simple title repeating the essay question or changing it a little is all that is required. The purpose is for the marker to quickly see what question has been chosen. The title can be written in lower-case letters as it is in the question or it can be capitalised.

Essay question: What are your career goals?

Essay title: My Career Goals

Essay question: "The Internet has improved our lives." Discuss.

Essay title: The Internet has improved our lives.

or The Internet or Has the Internet Improved Our Lives?

General Note on Listenings

In the test, the recordings are played twice. This can be a bit dull in a good class – you'll have to decide whether to do so or not. Transcripts are at the back of the Teacher's Book. These can be photocopied and given to students who then underline the answers (and perhaps the distractions). This gives students a good feel for the structure and timing of the listening. As the Part One sections are dialogues, they can be done as a speaking exercise in pairs.

General Note on Readings

Anglia has less time pressure than other tests such as TOEFL so the readings can be done a little less frantically. However, the students should not start these sections by reading the whole text in detail from beginning to end. This is unnecessary. It's best to first read through the text quickly to see the topic and structure. Pay attention to the title, the first paragraph, and the first sentences of the following paragraphs. Then go through the questions. (Note: The questions – of the same type – are usually in order). Get the students to choose keywords to search for, and possible paraphrases/synonyms. Emphasise that the sentence/phrase containing the answer may be worded differently from the question.

Don't get the students to read the readings out loud in class. This is just a time-killing exercise with little benefit for the student who is reading aloud or for the students listening.

To generate interest in the reading, you may want to ask some questions about the topic before handling the questions. Remember to insist on full answers.

Introduction Unit

Pg. 5 Improving your English

Instructions: Have the students guess the missing words before playing the CD. Alternatively, it can be assigned as homework and the answers checked in class.

Answers: 1. single 2. to 3. about 4. difficult
5. grammar 6. find 7. enough 8. called 9. never
10. good

Pg. 6

Answers: 1. theatre 2. catalogue 3. honour
4. levelled 5. legalise 6. labour

Pg. 7

Answers: Vocabulary Differences (the British English vocabulary is highlighted)

1.
football / soccer
subway / underground
line / queue
apartment / flat
lift / elevator
trash / rubbish
sidewalks / pavement
off-licence / liquor store
cinema / movie theater first floor / ground floor
2.
pants / trousers
crisps / potato chips
biscuits / cookies
candy / sweets
chips / French fries ('French' is often lower case, i.e. french fries)

3.
two weeks / a fortnight
traveling / travelling coach / (long-distance) bus tires / tyres
motorway / freeway rang / called truck / lorry
gas(oline) / petrol
mad / angry

Notes:

The way Americans use the word 'pants' is funny for Brits as it means 'underwear' in BrEng.

The British use 'call' as well as 'ring'.
In British English, 'mad', in addition to meaning 'angry', can also mean 'silly'.

Pg. 8 Classroom Language

It's important to get the class into the habit of asking you questions. Rather than spoon-feed the students, prompt them to ask for examples and explanations.

1. Can you say that again please?
2. How do you spell ...?
3. What does mean?
4. What page are we on?
5. Have you got a partner?
6. What's the difference between A and B?
7. Can you make a sentence with ...?
8. Can you give us another example?
9. Sorry, I'm a bit confused. Can you explain it again?
10. Let's ask the teacher.
11. What did you get for number 2?
12. What's the answer to number 3?
13. Can you correct this essay for me?
14. Sorry I'm late. I missed my bus.

Pg. 9 Find someone who...

Remember to model this before getting the class to do it. Take the first sentence, "..... is a bookworm" and elicit questions for it; You can accept a direct question like "Are you a bookworm?" but it's better to encourage broader, more natural questions like, "Do you enjoy reading?" Elicit follow-up questions, and write notes on the board as an example of what they should write under 'More Information'.

Unit 1. Off the Beaten Track

Pg. 10

General Note on the Vocabulary Lists and Pictures

The first page of Unit One – as with most of the units – starts with a vocabulary list, a series of pictures, and questions for discussion.
The best way to handle this is to start with the pictures. Have the students say what the pictures are of. Then go back to the vocabulary list, reading through it and checking that the students know what the words mean. After that, get them to go through the questions in pairs. Finish with a class discussion of the questions.

1. amusement park 2. art museum 3. water park 4. castle 5. aquarium 6. cathedral

Notes: You may want to ask the students if they know the difference between...

an art museum and an art gallery (Answer: Both places show art but an art gallery has artwork for sale. Art galleries are usually smaller and sometimes privately owned), and the difference between a church and a cathedral (Answer: A cathedral is a large church, in particular the largest and most important church in an area).

Pg. 11 Corrections

1. Delete 'to'.
2. I want to go to the UK to do a master's degree. (The definitive article 'the' is not usually used before countries; the most common exceptions are those which contain the words republic, state, union, kingdom, or consist of a group of islands).
E.g. the People's Republic of China, the United States, the European Union, the United Kingdom, the Philippines
It's also worth noting that we say the Netherlands.
3. One of the benefits of travelling overseas is that it makes you appreciate the ...
4. My favourite holiday activity is going shopping.
5. You can learn a lot more about a foreign culture by experiencing / having contact with it first-hand than you can learn about it from books.
6. Visitors to the US are advised to get health insurance.
7. I went to America last year. It was a wonderful trip.
8. The travel writer told the reporter that his latest book had been translated into three languages.
9. 'News' is an uncountable noun, so delete 'a'.
10. Sarah and Michael went to Cyprus for their honeymoon.

Pg. 12 Reading: Britain vs. the UK

The English landmarks are (clockwise from the top left): Stonehenge, London Eye, Tower Bridge, Buckingham Palace, Big Ben

Top centre: The Royal Pavilion (also commonly called the Brighton Pavilion)

Bottom centre: The Tower of London

All of these are in London except for Stonehenge and the Royal Pavilion.

Notes on the places not covered in the listening:

Big Ben is the nickname for a clock tower (although technically it is the bell inside the tower that is called Big Ben). It was completed in 1859.

Stonehenge is located in southern England about two hours south-west of London; the stones were erected about 2400BC.

Tower Bridge spans the Thames River in the heart of London. It opened in 1894. The middle section between the two towers can be raised to allow ships to pass underneath.

The Royal Pavilion is a former royal residence in the coastal city of Brighton.

- C. Guy Fawkes Night 5th November
- D. New Year's Day 1st January
- E. Christmas Day 25th December
- F. Valentine's Day 14th February

6. Notes about the holidays

Your students might not be familiar with the following holidays:

Boxing Day is a public holiday in the UK and many commonwealth countries such as Canada, Australia, and New Zealand. The name comes from the former practice of the wealthy giving presents (i.e. a Christmas 'box') to the less fortunate on the day after Christmas. Nowadays people associate Boxing Day with shopping; there are large sales, and for some shops it is the biggest day of the year.

St. Patrick's Day is a public holiday in Ireland, and celebrated around the world in countries with many Irish descendants. It is named after a Christian missionary who is credited with bringing Christianity to Ireland in the early 5th Century.

Guy Fawkes Night celebrates the failure of a plot in 1605 to blow up the English Parliament. Guy Fawkes was the name of one of the plotters. Many people celebrate the day by letting off fireworks or going to fireworks displays.

General Note on Readings

Anglia tests have less time pressure than other tests such as TOEFL and IELTS so the readings can be done a little less frantically. Still, the students shouldn't read the whole text in detail. This is unnecessary. It's best to first read through the text quickly to see the topic and structure. Pay attention to the title, the first paragraph, and the first sentences of the following paragraphs. Then go through the questions. (Note: The questions – of the same type – are usually in order).

Get the students to guess the kind of answer they will be looking for, and the keywords to search for. Emphasise that the answer will probably be worded differently from the question. For the reading 'Solar-powered Cars' the first question is "When was the first World Solar Challenge held?"

The answer will most likely be a 'year' so the quickest way to find it is to scan the article for a 'year' then see if there is a reference to 'first' or a similar word ('began' for example). In this case the answer is 'since the first race in 1987'.

Note: Don't get the students to read the readings out loud. This is just a time-killing exercise with little benefit for the student reading aloud and for the students listening.

1. The unemployment rate is rising. The main reason for this is that the economy is bad. Hopefully, the situation will improve next year.
(Note: the difference between the verbs 'raise' and 'rise' is that 'raise' requires an object to do the motion, She raised her hand. The government will raise taxes. In contrast, 'rise' doesn't have an object doing the action, Taxes are expected to rise by 5 percent. The sun rises in the east.)
2. I've been to about seven job interviews. Unfortunately, I only got one of them. The job market is very competitive so it's hard to find work / a job these days. ('Because' needs to be deleted because the sentence has 'so'; alternatively, 'so' could be deleted instead of 'because'.)

Adding detail: Fill in the gaps with words from the box.

heavily	narrow	stained-glass	two-storey	seaside	five-minute	festive
---------	--------	---------------	------------	---------	-------------	---------

I live in a small (1)_____ town called Bridgetown. It's a nice place that is a very popular summer destination, but my favourite time of the year is Christmas. Follow me on a tour through Bridgetown on Christmas Eve.

Starting at my house at 7:00pm, we walk out of the front door and see a (2)_____ street with old (3)_____ Victorian houses. The winters are usually quite mild, but it snowed (4)_____ yesterday and there is still snow lying on the ground. A couple of young boys are building a snowman in their front garden.

After a (5)_____ walk, we come to the local shops. Although most of them are closed, the main street has a nice (6)_____ atmosphere. It's lined with coloured lights, and the shop windows are full of decorations. There's also a huge Christmas tree next to the town clock.

At the end of the street is Bridgetown's oldest and largest building, St. Martin's Church. It's a 400-year-old stone church with nice (7)_____ windows. I can hear the people inside singing Christmas songs. Stepping inside, I see that it is a candle lit service; all the churchgoers are holding a candle while they sing 'Silent Night.'

To sum up, my hometown of Bridgetown is especially nice at Christmas. If you want a taste of a traditional holiday in an old-fashioned place, why not visit Bridgetown on Christmas Eve?

Synonyms: How many times is the adjective 'nice' used? Underline each usage and suggest an adjective to replace it.

Buckingham Palace: The Royal Family's London residence is open to the public in August and September while the Queen is on holiday in Scotland. The hours are 9:30am-4:30pm, Monday to Sunday. Ticket prices are 16 pounds 50 pence for adults, 9 pounds 50 pence for those under 17. Admission is free for children under five years of age. Visitors are strongly advised to book in advance. The number for booking is (020)7766 7305.

The Tower of London: Built in the 11th century by William the First, the Tower of London has served many functions: it has been a fortress, a royal palace, a prison and a jewel house. In summer it is open daily, from 9am to 6pm, Monday to Saturday, and from 10am to 6pm on Sundays. An adult ticket is 14 pounds and 90 pence. The admission for children aged 5 to 16 is 9 pounds 15. You can get a small discount by booking online or by telephone. Call 0844 482 7199.

London Eye: This is a huge Ferris wheel that offers the best views of central London. It has been operating since the year 2000 and is now the most popular paid attraction in the United Kingdom. In summer it is open from 10am to 8pm. Standard tickets cost 17 pounds for adults. Children from 4-15 pay 8 pounds 50. The London Eye was the tallest Ferris wheel from its completion in late 1999 until May, 2006.

For more information on London's attractions go to the official London tourism website, www.visitlondon.com or call 08701 566 396.

UNIT 4 An Apple a Day

- A: Well, I think the most important factor is delicious food.
- B: Yes, absolutely. If the food is delicious, people will come back. And they'll also tell friends about the place.
- A: That's right. Which one do you think is the second most important?
- B: Low prices. People are always looking for good value for money.
- A: Yes, but low prices and good value for money aren't exactly the same.
- B: I know but I still think having low prices is important.
- A: I suppose you're right. Okay, I think the third most important thing is good service, having friendly waiters and waitresses.
- B: Absolutely! I never return to restaurants that have rude staff.
- A: What's the next most important factor?
- B: I think a good location is vital for success.
- A: Yes, that's right. For example, it's good to be near public transport – customers don't need to worry about parking, or drinking and driving.
- B: And for the fifth one I would choose comfortable and spacious seating.
- A: Sure, it's an important factor in terms of enjoying your meal but does it help make a restaurant more successful? The problem is that customers will sit in your restaurant too long. So, you'll get fewer customers.
- B: Okay, I see what you mean. I hadn't thought about that. So, what would you rank fifth?
- A: A wide variety of dishes.
- B: Really? Personally, I think it's better to have a smaller menu. Just do a few main dishes but do them well.
- B: But customers will get bored with the menu if it's too limited.
- A: All right, let's put that as the fifth, and then your one about seating as the sixth.
- B: So what's next? Experienced chefs?
- A: That sounds good to me. Now, let's start at the other end; what is the least important?
- B: Pleasant music. People don't go to a restaurant to listen to music.
- A: I agree. That leaves nice décor and clean toilets.
- B: I think décor is more important than clean toilets.
- A: Yes, I think so.

UNIT 5 Leave only Footprints

Overnight temperatures will drop to a low of minus five degrees. The morning will see wintry conditions across the country. There will be heavy rain in the morning but the weather will clear up in the afternoon.

The south, fine with a few cloudy periods. Drizzle in the west, showers in the east and south, with the possibility of thunderstorms in the afternoon. Temperatures will be unusually high, reaching a maximum of 28 degrees Celsius.

We're starting the day with some fog, but that will burn off by late morning. Expect a sunny afternoon with a high of 22 degrees. Tomorrow will be cloudy, with a high of about 19 degrees.

Speaker 1. You will hear a man talking about a problem with his computer.

Well, talk about learning things the hard way. From now on I'm going to be more careful about regularly saving my work. Last month I was working on my thesis for my master's degree. I was writing up all my notes and interviews on my computer. Then, one morning while I was checking my e-mails, I opened an e-mail attachment without checking who had sent it and what it was. It was some advertising and I deleted it. Anyway, it worked its way into my system and wiped out my hard drive. I lost about two weeks' worth of writing. I know, I know, I should have had a back-up copy of my work, but I didn't. I had to rewrite everything. Funny thing is I did a better job the second time. I certainly don't recommend it though.

Speaker 2. You will hear a woman talking about an interview.

As I was expecting, I got the usual "strengths and weaknesses" question. Always a bit of a dilemma – if you say "no weaknesses" it sounds a bit arrogant. I could have said I worried too much, was too dedicated, overwork myself – but went with the truth, that I dislike group work and taking part in group discussions. I was less truthful when they asked about how I was going to fund my studies. I've noticed a certain negative reaction when I talk about the old folks' being well off – which seems a bit unfair, doesn't it? – so rather than sounding like a spoiled rich girl I lied and said that I had worked hard and saved up the money. They seemed impressed with my answers and I'm pretty sure they'll give me a place on the course.

Speaker 3. You will hear a man talking about an evening class he is taking.

It's a class at my local community centre, held every Tuesday morning. Being a day-time course it's mostly oldies – the average age is probably 65 – but at least that means it's a friendly atmosphere and the instructor goes at a slow pace. Our first instructor was a bit impatient and moody – but he left after having a stroke. The replacement guy is great. He's patient and very relaxed, and he's good at explaining things. For someone lousy at technology and arty things that's a big plus. It's a beginner class, specially designed for dinosaurs like myself finally making the leap from film to digital. You don't even need to bring anything. They can lend you all the gear. At the moment we're doing close-ups – flowers, insects, that kind of thing.

UNIT 7 Law and Order

According to official figures released yesterday, the overall crime rate for England has remained stable over the past twelve months. However, there were significant increases in burglaries, robberies with knives, and violence related to knives. Robberies at knife point have risen by almost twenty percent. Burglaries went up by four percent.

The infamous murderer Ian Smith was released from prison today on parole. He served eleven years of his sixteen-year sentence. The parents of the murdered girl, 17-year-old Jennifer Hudson, have criticized Smith's early release.

A twenty-year-old man has been charged with the death of a 15-year-old boy. The teenager was shot in a car park in Manchester around eleven pm last night. He was taken to hospital but his condition deteriorated. He was pronounced dead at three am this morning. The shooting was caught on a CCTV security camera. Using a licence plate number caught on film, the police were able to trace the suspect to his inner-city flat.

UNIT 9 Nine to Five

Page 77 Speaking Task 2 Presentations

The main reason vocational training is better than doing an academic degree is that it is easier to find work when you graduate. If you study dentistry, you have a 99% chance of finding a job. Plumbers and electricians also have very high rates of employment. Another important advantage is that you can earn money while you learn. For example, a mechanic might work in a garage as an apprentice, learning on the job, and getting paid at the same time. And these jobs pay well; a mechanic earns more than a teacher, a builder earns more than a journalist.

Vocational jobs also give people the chance to be self-employed. This gives a person freedom and also the chance to earn a lot of money.

In contrast, employment opportunities are worse for graduates with academic degrees. After getting your B.A. in ancient history, what can you do? Mmm, very little. So, you go back to university and do an M.A. The problem is that so many other people have one. Perhaps you could teach, no, you need a Ph.D. Okay, you study for four more years. You now have a Ph.D. As it's not a practical subject, you hope to get a teaching position at a university; you can perhaps tutor some master's students who can't find work with a B.A. Well, there's a long queue; you need to wait for a few professors to retire or die off. In the meantime, you find another job at the university –unfortunately, it's as a toilet cleaner.

In developed countries more than 40% of young people complete university courses. The fact is that not everyone is smart enough to go to university. I believe that they should be for the very best students. In my opinion the top 20% should go. And it's not just being smart. You also need a strong interest – today many students just go because of pressure from parents or because society expects it. Because universities are accepting so many unsuitable students, they have “dumbed down,” that is they have made their courses easier. The result is that employers are no longer impressed by a university degree. Academic degrees are no longer seen as reliable proof that a person is intelligent and well educated.

To sum up, academic degrees are only really suitable for a small minority. For most people it makes more sense to study something practical; this will ensure that you can get a good job.

US carmaker Ford has reported its largest ever full-year loss. A Ford spokesman said it had lost $5.9 billion in the fourth quarter and $14.6 billion for the whole year. Ford is to announce layoffs in the coming weeks.

Exports from Scotland last month were 5% higher than for the same month last year. Economists say this is due to the weakness of the British pound. In the past ten months the pound has lost approximately 8% of its value against its major trading partners.

Spain's economy is in recession for the first time in 17 years, according to figures released by the Spanish central bank. The economy has experienced two successive quarters of negative growth. The Bank of Spain said that an economic recovery is unlikely in the next 18 months; it estimates the gross domestic product will shrink by 1.6% next year.

The US sandwich chain Subway has announced plans to open 600 new stores in the UK and Ireland over the next two years. Starting with just 25 stores in 2000, the number has grown rapidly over the past decade. There are currently more than 1400 stores in the UK and Ireland.

Music and DVD retailer Music Box is to close 10 stores in England: five will close immediately and a further five by the end of the year. The company estimates these closures will lead to the loss of 190 jobs.

The ECB (the European Central Bank) has cut interest rates by half a percentage point to 2%. This is the fourth time it has cut interest rates since December. However, the new interest rate of 2 percent is still higher than the current UK rate of 1.5%, and another cut is expected in March.

You are going to hear people talking in five different situations. For questions 1 to ten, choose the correct answer, A, B or C.

Speaker 1. You will hear a woman talking about something she bought.

I've regretted buying lots of things but one purchase stands out. Last year my desktop had just died on me. I went to a local electronics store, a chain store. Twenty minutes later I was walking out the door with a brand new toy. I've always been an impulsive shopper. The sales assistant said it would be good to take with me when I was commuting or travelling. The reality has been quite different. I've only used it out of the house a few times. The supposed advantage – being smaller – is actually a disadvantage; the screen is small and so is the keypad, so typing is a bit tricky. The main problem, though, is overheating. Even in winter, it can get really hot and it sometimes shuts down. I've bought a special fan to keep it cool, which works to some extent, but it's hardly ideal.

Speaker 2. You will hear a man talking about his job in a shop.

I've had several retail jobs. The longest was at a gift shop. It was in a five-star place for business travellers and well-off tourists. I worked there for five years, two years part-time, and three years full-time. For the most part, I enjoyed it. My duties were light, the customers were nice and the pay was good. Because the shop rent was high, there was pressure to meet sales targets but this never seemed to be an issue. There were the usual downsides – long hours on your feet (which is unhealthy), some difficult customers, and boredom. One thing that is different about working in that kind of location is, of course, all the foreign guests and customers; this was a positive, I got to practise my German and Spanish, and I found that people were friendly when speaking in a second language – smiling to make up for the communication gap.

Speaker 3. You will hear a businesswoman talking about sales trends.

We have a lot to get through, so I'll keep things as brief as possible. First, sales for the past two quarters. If you turn to page two of the hand-out, you'll see a graph with sales figures. We've broken it down into three categories: white, milk, dark, and the dark we've divided into two sub-categories – under 69% cacao, and greater than 70% cacao. Overall, you can see a steady rise, with a few bursts for Valentine's and Easter. Sales were especially strong for our milk varieties. The dark varieties have been doing okay, too, in part to news stories about its health benefits. Still, it's too early to say whether the popularity is just a fad or not. Turning to profits, you can see the blue line closely following the sales line. We will probably see profits fall in the next quarter or two because of increases in sugar prices.

Speaker 4. You will hear a man talking about shopping in Japan.

It was near our hotel in Tokyo so we popped in a few times. It was similar to ones here, the same sections and layout – supermarket and food court in the basement, more expensive restaurants on the top floor, but overall it was nicer, obviously more Japanese brands, and a few special Japanese products like kimonos. The level of service was very high. Professional and friendly, but perhaps a bit too much. You know, it made you feel uncomfortable. For example, there was a lift attendant – a woman greeting customers, bowing, announcing the floors, and pushing the buttons for them. It seemed odd and made me feel awkward. I used the escalators after that. So, did I buy anything? Yes, some gifts, a pair of sneakers for myself, and some snacks.

Speaker 5. You will hear a woman talking about shopping.

It was a great bargain. Normally something like this would be at least a hundred and fifty pounds, but I got it for twenty pounds. My mum thinks it's gorgeous but my sister hates it – she's a hard-core vegan, you know, she's like "How can you wear a dead animal?" It's lovely, isn't it? So smooth! It's got a lovely smell too. Mmm. I got it at the charity shop at the end of Bridge Street, the Red Cross shop. It was good timing. I just happened to be there when they brought in a shipment of stock. Most of the good pieces disappeared in minutes. There were some customers there who seemed to be expecting the shipment. Waiting like vultures for a dead animal. I'm pretty sure they buy up all the good stuff and resell it online. To me that doesn't seem fair for the charity shop or for the normal customers.
